The heart

is the worst
place to hide,
its old charge gives

everything away.
There the lie
of the old songs,

for cleft of it
you'd be happy in
the sweet winds

filling its aperture.